OIS # 18-12

On Friday, June 8, 2018, at approximately 8:10am, two plainclothes detectives operating an unmarked police vehicle responded to a radio assignment of "person with a weapon and gunshots at 1400 Lardner Street." The detectives observed the offender standing in the street next to a Chevrolet Traverse automobile while holding a revolver. Both detectives drew their firearms and identified themselves as police officers. The detectives heard a gunshot and observed the offender with his weapon pointed at them. Both detectives discharged their firearms at the offender, missing the male. The offender entered the Chevrolet and fled. A trace of the license plate led officers to the 7100 block of Woolston Street where they discovered the unoccupied vehicle. Officers went to the male's residence, where he surrendered and was arrested without further incident. An empty revolver was recovered under a mattress in a second floor bedroom of the residence where the male was located. The offender was uninjured.
