The officer observed a male, who matched the provided description of the offender, in the 4600 block of Paul Street. The officer exited his vehicle and ordered the offender to stop and put his hands up. The offender fled to the 4600 block of Frankford Avenue, where he drew a revolver from his waist area and pointed the weapon at the officer. The officer drew his weapon and discharged the weapon, missing the offender. The offender continued to flee and again pointed the revolver at the officer. The officer discharged his weapon a second time, again missing the offender. The offender ran into an open lot, and once again pointed the revolver at the officer, who discharged his weapon a third time, again missing the offender. The offender dropped his weapon and fled into a nearby alley, where he stopped. The officer pursued the offender into the alley and he ordered him to put his hands up. The offender then attempted to punch the officer and a struggle ensued. During the struggle the offender attempted to remove the officer's weapon from the holster. As the struggle continued, the officer was able to draw his weapon and subsequently discharged the weapon at the offender, striking him.

Fire Rescue transported the offender to Hahnemann Hospital for treatment.

The offender's revolver, containing four spent shell casings, was recovered in the open lot.
