12/9/07

On 12/9/07, at approximately 2:12 A.M., a uniformed Philadelphia officer observed a SEPTA officer attempt to stop a black Ford Expedition, in the 100 block of Chestnut Street. The officer went to assist the SEPTA officer as the Expedition accelerated and struck the Philadelphia officer.

Both the SEPTA officer and the Philadelphia officer discharged their weapons at the offender. The Ford Expedition fled the scene. A short time later, the offender went to the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania for gunshot wounds to his right shoulder and right hand.

The Ford Expedition was recovered outside of the hospital and officers observed four males exit the vehicle. The SEPTA officer subsequently identified the offender as a passenger in the Ford Expedition. A second occupant of the Expedition was found to have a gunshot wound and he was transported to the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania. No weapons were recovered.
